The Journal of Computing offers good visibility of online research and the aim of the journal is to present original scientific and professional papers, as well as review articles and surveys, covering the theory, practice and methodology of computer science and engineering, modelling and simulation, and information systems. The Journal of Computing intended for publication of truly original papers of interest to a wide audience in Computer Science, Information Technology and boundary areas between these and other fields.

The contributions should be written in English and may be of theoretical or applied nature, the essential criteria are computational relevance and systematic foundation of results. The scope of the journal includes but not limited to dependable computing, parallel computing, services computing and cloud computing, green computing, internet computing, business process computing, software evolution and mining and network science, social networks, collective intelligence. The articles must be written using APA style in two columns format. The article should be typed, double-spaced on standard-sized (8.5" x 11") with 1" margins on all sides using 12 pt. Times New Roman font and 8-12 pages in length. The standard international policy regarding similarity with existing articles will be followed prior to publication of articles. All submissions will be screened for plagiarism and when identified, the submissions by the same author will be rejected at any stage of the review process even after the publication of the paper online. The accumulated similarities should not exceed 10% from all additive sources and a maximum of 5% from single source. Names and Affiliations of the authors must NOT be included anywhere in the paper during the initial submission. For the peer review purpose, self-references are NOT permitted. If the author needs to refer his/her own paper the reference MUST be made in third person. Any attempt to reveal author details and affiliation at the time of initial submission will lead to rejection of the paper without further processing.

All papers that conform to submission guidelines will be double blind peer reviewed by at least three domain experts and evaluated based on originality, technical and/or research content/depth, correctness, relevance to conference, contributions, and readability. Acceptance of papers will be communicated to authors by email. The authors of the accepted papers will be allowed to make corrections in accordance with the suggestions of the reviewers and submit final camera-ready papers within the stipulated deadline. All camera ready papers must be prepared in conformance with reviewer's report. The Editorial Board is responsible for correctness of the manuscript including content, language, formal presentation and completeness. Editorial Board is also responsible for ensuring that the content of each contribution meet the designated requirements. Decision of the Editorial Board will be final. The copyright of the accepted article to be given by the authors to the Computer Society of India as per the specified format prior to the publication of the accepted article.
